Developing an Effective CEO/ Board Partnership
Governance as Leadership: Three Modes of Governing

In Governance as Leadership, authors Richard Chait, William Ryan, and Barbara Taylor state that governing has become more complicated and can no longer be reduced to simple aphorisms like “boards set policies and administrators implement” or “boards establish ends and management determines means.” Boards have to be engaged in meaningful, challenging, and provocative work if they are to become fully engaged and energized for their task. The authors conceive of board work and functioning in three types or modes:

Tips for Building the CEO Chair Relationship

- Ensure current job descriptions are in place for CEO, board chair, and board members and that they reflect the three modes of governance: judiciary, strategic, and generative.

- Meet regularly outside of regular board meetings to have candid, meaningful discussions about your relationship and about issues facing the organization to ensure no surprises for either partner.

- Keep track of key concerns about your relationship and about the board, set goals, and develop an action plan to work on them.

- Seek clarity about each other’s point of view by asking questions and being open to learning and by sense-making together.

- Be realistic about what you can accomplish and discuss more than one avenue to success on any given issue (for example, could something be asked to addressed by the chair of the governance committee or by the executive committee?).

- Establish a process for measuring progress and set markers for success.

- Avoid becoming a "two-person" board, avoid creating a dynamic in which the CEO and the board chair so dominate the governance process that no one else has input or impact.

- Approach assessment as tool to strengthen board chair and executive performance.
